> Throughout my 20 + year career as a technical communicator, STC has been invaluable to me. It has helped me stay employed through rough times and good times. —Donn DeBoard

> The most valuable part of STC for me, as a student, is the opportunity to connect with professionals who are successful in the field I aspire to join. —Sara Yacoubian

> You will definitely get more out of working with the local chapter than you put into it. You will meet wonderful, accomplished people, and those people will become resources for you, whether you're looking for a new software tool, someone to hire, or even a new job. —Ellen O'Brien

STC
PMC

Society for Technical Communication

Philadelphia Metro Chapter

Who are we?

Technical communicators work in every industry, producing online help, multimedia content, training, and other information products.

- Content and information developers
- Documentation managers
- Documentation specialists
- Information architects
- Teachers and professors
- Technical illustrators and graphic artists
- Technical translators
- Technical writers and editors
- Trainers and e-learning developers
- Usability specialists
- Web designers

Society for Technical Communication Philadelphia Metro Chapter

www stcpmc.org

in linkedin.com/groups/104514

🐦 @stcpmc

f www.facebook.com/STCPMC

STC is the world's largest community of technical communicators, with members in more than 50 countries.

STC Philadelphia Metro Chapter members live and work across southern New Jersey, southeast Pennsylvania, and Delaware.

Join us!

- Get STC's monthly magazine, Intercom; professional journal, Technical Communication; and blog, Notebook.
- Access job listings and member directories.
- Attend the annual Technical Communication Summit, the world's largest gathering of technical communicators.
- Negotiate for fair compensation with the salary survey.
- Apply for certification and submit your work for publication and awards.

Through the Philadelphia Metro Chapter

- Meet a community of friends who will support you throughout your career.
- Stay on top of a changing profession with meetups, webinars, and online discussions.
- Be the first to hear about local job openings.
- Hone your planning and presentation skills at CONDUIT—the STC-PMC Mid-Atlantic TechComm Conference.

Visit stc.org/membership

Choose Philadelphia as your local chapter